

CIS-QFC INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ISLAMIC FINANCE AND CIRCULAR ECONOMY

Toward Inclusive Societies, Responsible Business, and Responsive Financial Strategies and Policies

Islamic finance has come a long way over the last four decades. During its current transformative decade, Islamic finance is facing the challenge of strategic sustainability and is in need of revisiting its operational paradigm; as landfills, ecological and environmental degradation, climate change and other factors stressing the planet are widely understood to be the by-products of the current linear approach of the world economy. While this approach of 'taking, making, using, disposing, and wasting' the planet's resources is the dominant economic paradigm, the laws of ecology, like the water cycle, show us that nature does not ever waste.

With this new perspective, over the last few years, a circular economic system is emerging; exploring ways, means, processes, and incentives to learn from nature and to minimize and ideally eliminate all types of waste. Thus, what are the prospects of a handshake between Islamic finance and this emerging new paradigm? Thorough studies and deliberations are therefore needed to explore prospects for economics, finance, business, management, and other fields of humanities to learn from nature through the lens of Islamic values along with as well as the multidimensional Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations (UN SDGs), can be explored.

This conference, organized by the Center for Islamic Economics and Finance of the College of Islamic Studies with the support of the Qatar Financial Centre, set out to probe and take stock of the existing knowledge and prospects for transforming economies to achieve and sustain multidimensional development by bringing together original papers deliberating on Islamic finance and the circular economy.
